Copyright, 1926, all rights reserved. BERLIN, Jan. 28,-An interview with the parents of Hirschfeld, the young cadet officer, who shot Finance Minister Erzberger, reveals the fact that when the Erzberger-Helfferich case was discussed in the family circle Hirschfeld repeatedly said he would much like to shoot Erzberger. The father and mother did not condemn the idea; indeed they expressly declared they were unable to condemn their son's action, as in their eyes he had only distinguished himself. The evening before the shooting Hirschfeld usked his father for his revolver, which was given to him without ado.

Signed Blank Resignation

The outstanding features of Mayor Lunn's testimony that on the night before election in 1911, when he was running for Mayor on the Socialist ticket, two members of the party went to his home and pre-sented a blank resignation for his signature. This, he said, he signed in or-ler to "avoid a squabble.", although ne considered it "child's play and ilgal." He refused, he said, in 1913 to sign the required resignation before the election. This time he was defeated. In 1915, he testified, he was again none A man whom the police identified as bound him to follow the dictates of his Captain collapsed in front of party leaders.
